

2019 CALL FOR ARTISTIC RESIDENCES AT LA ESCOCESA

La Escocesa is a factory recovered and reopened by a group of artists who in the 90s decided to reinterpret the use of the factory and question some of its guiding and alienating principles. Above all, the importance given to the subject and manual action put emphasis on a claim for freedom and creativity, reversing the processes that since the Industrial Revolution had put the production force and natural times at the service of the machine.

The time of creation in La Escocesa runs against the mechanization of production: the clock, the chronometer, the metronome stop and then the organism starts a dialogue with materiality and the proper temporality for non-timed creation. The creative actions that are carried out in the centre are a clear reflection of how the collective empowerment of the old factories by the workers involves an immediacy with the work, which flows without external mechanical mediation. The experience of organic creativity, both individual and collective, is materialized in an emancipatory, democratic and horizontal way.

The center is defined as an open factory for its associative and non-hierarchical nature, as it is a center where voices are always welcome to create collective experiences. His emphasis on analogical creation aims to highlight a methodology with which artists reappropriate non-cutting-edge and abandoned technologies in an emancipatory and experimental way for the development of their projects.

In this framework, La Escocesa opens in 2019 a call for 11 residences in spaces for artistic creation, offered to individual artists or groups wishing to develop an artistic project in the center in a term from four months to two years.

Resident members will have the opportunity to apply for grants for experimentation and artistic research offered by the center, as well as internationalization grants. They will also have the opportunity to participate in the projects and exhibitions proposed by La Escocesa.

The artistic projects developed within the framework of a residence will have the support of the center's technical team, especially a production assistant, and may benefit from monitoring and advice from a work team.

La Escocesa will ensure that artistic projects developed in the center are integrated into the artistic and cultural networks of the city, as well as to disseminate and promote the work of artists through their own communication channels.

Following the model of associative management of the center, the residents chosen by the present call become members of the Associació d'idees EMA, which manages the space, so they commit themselves to participate in the internal coordination meetings, as well as in the activities proposed by the center.

Failure to pay the monthly fees and continued absence in the space, as well as failure to fulfil the duties as a resident member, may be grounds for termination of the residence period.
